

RUMORS ABOUT THE MOHICAN

All sorts of wild rumors were floating about the water front and naval station yesterday in regard to the United States training ship Mohican. The Mohican is now eleven days overdue and her prolonged delay is causing considerable anxiety among friends of the officers and cadets in Honolulu. She sailed from Yokohama May 18 and, barring accidents, should have reached here June 26th, or at least June 23d. Her non-arrival can be accounted for in no way, and all theories so far advanced have proven nothing. Yesterday it was quite generally reported on the waterfront that the Mohican had been seen either near Oahu or one of the other islands of the group. According to this report she was laying at anchor and her crew was engaged in overhauling her, preparatory to coming into port. The report was alleged to have been brought by one of the island steamers, but investigation failed to disclose any one who would take the responsibility for the story. Another report was to the effect that the training ship has been seen off Koko Head, but Diamond Head Charlie is positive that this could not have been the case, or he would have known of it. Admiral Merry takes but little stock in the story and none of the navy officials believe that the rumors flying about yesterday are true.

The Mohican's sailing orders called for her arrival in Honolulu on June 23d, and nothing has been heard of her yet. She is scheduled to leave here for Puget Sound July 5, and has but a few days in which to make her itinerary. While it is possible that the Mohican may have met with head winds, this does not explain her long delay, for in that case Captain Cowden would have fired up his engines and steamed into port in order to get into Honolulu on time. The Mohican has aboard about 200 naval cadets, the most of them from the Middle Western States.

STILL STICK TO REVENUE STAMPS

Despite the fact that the repeal of the war revenue tax law went into effect yesterday, there were a good many Honolulu people who were apparently not aware of it. There were a number of applications made at the Internal Revenue office yesterday for stamps for instruments which are no longer taxable, and half a dozen people were turned away. The most of the applicants were Japanese and they were filled with joy when told of the repeal of the law.

Stamps were found on nearly every freight bill of lading at the steamship offices yesterday and a good many instruments executed yesterday bore the usual revenue stamp. The stamp is no longer required on any instrument or document, transfers of stock, agreements, etc.

The revenue office force was also kept busy yesterday renewing licenses of liquor dealers, all of whom are required to pay a tax to the United States. There are about 300 in the Territory who pay a special tax and the Internal Revenue Department will be kept pretty busy for the next few days.

TRACY A FIRST LIEUTENANT

Special Orders No. 6, issued by the Adjutant General yesterday, make C. H. Tracy, a former sergeant in the National Guard, a first lieutenant and battalion adjutant for the second battalion. The order says: "Under the recommendation of battalion and regimental commanders, Sergeant Clifford H. Tracy is appointed adjutant of the Second Battalion, First Regiment, N. G. H., with rank as first lieutenant, from this date, June 26th, A. D. 1902."

"By order of the Commander in Chief, JOHN H. SOPER, Adjutant General."
